CGA Technical Webinar

Mastering the Unique Challenges of Acetylene Piping

September 18, 2019
2:00-3:00 pm (Eastern)
(11:00 am Pacific; 12:00 pm Mountain;
1:00 pm Central)

PRESENTED BY ROBERT STAUDER
*Area Manager
Linde Gas North America*

Due to acetylene's flammability, piping in acetylene service poses greater challenges compared to piping for some other compressed gases such as nitrogen. When dealing with acetylene, users want to be sure that the piping system safely contains the gas in order to avoid an acetylene release, which can be extremely dangerous.

In this webinar, Robert Stauder will provide an overview of acetylene properties that are relevant to piping design. He will also review which materials are prohibited for use for acetylene piping up to 400 psi, and which are acceptable. Finally, Robert will cover basic installation and maintenance recommendations.

Attend this webinar to learn:

- How to select piping materials that are least affected by acetylene
- How to maintain piping and components
- Where to find more details in CGA's library of safety standards

Audience level:

- Non-technical/entry level (little to no knowledge of the topic is required)
- Intermediate (basic knowledge and understanding of the topic)
